

July 18, 2017

Jacqueline and I are in the midst of deciding what gets given away, recycled, packed, or thrown away. At first, it seemed overwhelming and then we got into the flow. Jacqueline has been amazing in her systematic approach to getting it all accomplished. There is a good feeling of releasing things from the past that we no longer need. We are reminded that:

As we release the old, there is an excitement building within us. New location, new home, new job but most importantly is this wonderful feeling of a new Spiritual Home - Unity of Harrisburg.

Since the first Sunday we visited in early May and were blessed with the 2 four-leaf clovers, we have felt God's hand in this process of coming to central Pennsylvania. All the details have unfolded and been worked out to perfection. In the midst of all the packing, we are feeling very blessed and filled with a sense of gratitude.

We will move into our new home on Thursday, July 20th and I am looking forward to my first official Sunday on July 30th.

Dan